

Dear Family,

How are you doing? Just wanted to give another quick update on how I have been doing. Five months ago, I put on this black and white harness and I wasn't sure what I was going to do with it on. Now, I can do all kinds of things! I finally learned how to travel on escalators. Boy, are those things fun after I got the hang of it. I know how to find escalators, elevators, doors, and stairs for my instructor. She gets soo excited when I find things for her. I, also, learned how to travel when there are no sidewalks. Crazy, right?! Still working in Burbank mostly. The smells out there are amazing! Oh, and so many different looking dogs. But, I am working very hard not to let all that distracted no matter how hard it is sometimes.

I got a new roommate after coming back from spring break. She is cool. We have fun on our down time in the kennel. Miss you, but still having a good time.

Wags & Kisses
